The one thing I saw in this quick scan that caught my attention was the discussion about the International Disabled Exit Lighted Signage.

Second thought. It is a great document to have handy when we are reviewing building plans, especially plans to "rehab" older buildings: homes to offices, factories to medical suites and apartments, etc.

A second item, maybe not for next time, is a discussion about expanding town officials' understanding that "accessibility" is a universe larger than a ramp and grab bars (frequently in the wrong place). I'm thinking of concerns about Mike's email about voting.
